

Irma Puzauskaite | Intimacy Coordinator

In addition to her extensive training, Irma holds certification from the prestigious Intimacy Professionals Association, where she studied under the guidance of Amanda Blumenthal. This certification reflects her exceptional expertise in managing and facilitating intimate scenes on set, ensuring the comfort and safety of the actors involved. She is deeply committed to building trust-based relationships with actors and approaches each project with a dedication to fully grasping the director's vision.

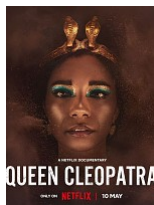

Collaboration, honesty, and care are the guiding principles of her approach, fostering an environment where open communication and mutual respect thrive. Irma's unwavering commitment to creating a supportive and inclusive space ensures that all individuals involved in the creative process feel safe, valued, and empowered. She is mental health first aid trained.

Irma is also an accomplished filmmaker with a strong foundation in directing, specializing in working closely with actors. She has honed her craft through invaluable mentorship from esteemed professionals such as Judith Weston, Barry Primus, and Steven Ditmyer (Meisner technique). With a keen eye for storytelling and a deep understanding of the actor's craft, Irma brings a unique perspective to her work.
